Trade Channel Optimization...

Go-To-Market Programs • Channel P&Ls

Are You Optimizing Performance Across Trade Channels?

The changing retail environment has created new consumer influence and relationship dynamics for packaged goods manufacturers. Consumer shopping behavior and the need to capture a greater share of consumer spending is influencing retailer expansion beyond traditional channels, retail formats and category offerings. This channel “blurring” is creating the need for leading manufacturers to rethink how they go-to-market by trade channel.

- Does your company understand these changing retail dynamics and have you adjusted your products, trade programs and customer organizations accordingly?
- Are your go-to-market strategies reflective of evolving consumer shopping habits?
- Are your resources deployed to optimize effectiveness and future growth?
- Do you understand the retailers’ strategies driving their competitive position within the marketplace, and whether these strategies will lead to profitable business growth?
- Have you completed an assessment of your business performance across the different channels and is this performance in line with your expectations?

This approach provides a comprehensive understanding of the return on resource investment, retailer channel strategies, consumer shopping practices and importantly, the identification of business opportunities by channel.

Channel Profitability

- Channel P&Ls are developed incorporating product mix/contribution, trade related investments, sales coverage costs and distribution costs

Channel Importance

- Analysis of each trade channel is conducted, including size, trends, mix of product sales and regional performance variations
- Assessment of velocity and profitability per channel outlet determines channel efficiency while prioritizing opportunities

Consumer Shopping Insights

- Shopper insights uncovered through purchase behavior identify size and type of products purchased, loyalty to channels, consumer profile variations and out-of-stock behavior

Retailer Strategies

- Retailer strategic category positioning is detailed across the identified product categories

Trade Performance and Trends

- Key performance areas include category assortment, promotional performance, space/merchandising effectiveness and other trade performance measures
- Channel shifts and future trends are identified

Channel Strategies And Plans

Profitable Trade Channel Growth Strategies are designed to drive consumer, product and customer programs within and across trade channels. This process will lead to the development of actionable plans in areas such as:

- Organization Design
- Resource Allocation
- Product Differentiation
- Merchandising Programs
- Customer Service Offerings
- Product Distribution Programs
